General character of writing: concerning general universal grammar of thought and general ideas common to all languages of civilized peoples. Chairman of Finance Dept. Y. W. C. A. National Board for ten years; during World War chairman of National Y. W. C. A. Volunteer Workers Bureau; a Founder of the Y. W. C. A. War Work Council; active in raising funds for Y. W. C. A. war work and for Red Cross. Founder of International Auxiliary Language Assoc. in the United States, Inc. (IALA); Hon. secy. of IALA since its incorporation; planned and took part in research activities of IALA, particularly its projects of linguistic research. Conceived and formulated general idea for such research in article, "Why Should We Cut Out Our Tongues?" published in The Forum, May, 1927. Organized the first international "Meeting of Linguistic Research," a gathering of selected eminent linguists and leaders of the constructed international languages which are most widely known. From the meeting there emerged a coordinated plan of linguistic research, aimed at producing material which should be of value as the basis for the most suitable kind of international language and as a basis for general language study. Iala advocates the development and establishment of one neutral language, secondary to all national languages and in conflict with none, to be taught in educational systems throughout the world, as a common medium of communication between people of different mother tongues. In 1931 received from Syracuse University honorary degree of Doctor of Letters, presented by Chancellor Flint in special recognition of the field of scholarship of international auxiliary language.
